

THE SITUATION IN WEST VIRGINIA

Most of the Cities Are Struggling With the Big Epidemic.

WHEELING—Church services here have been abandoned for the last two Sundays and this is believed to be the first time in the history of the place that Sunday services have been called off in the churches.

CHARLESTON—Willard Comstock, chairman of the Home Service Department of the Red Cross, and associate workers at headquarters have started wearing gauze masks in line with a ruling of the city health commissioner calling on all who come in contact with the public to follow such a course for self protection.

HUNTINGTON—The Rotary club, an organization which has "service" as its slogan is doing all that it can to help stamp out Spanish influenza here. At last week's meeting of the organization resolutions were adopted authorizing physicians for not co-operating with the health department which marked the start of the Rotary club's activity.

WILLIAMSON—There has been 24 deaths here from Spanish influenza. The disease is so widespread in some mining points that practically every resident is either ill or serving the suffering ones. There are 200 cases at Chatteroy, a small town near here.

CHARLESTON—Mrs. Ben H. Kaufman came out with a request for money to buy milk for influenza patients at the Armory and the Salvation Army Citadel, which have both been turned into emergency hospitals. The Red Cross was handling the situation so this well intended effort was abandoned especially as one milk firm promptly volunteered to provide all milk that was required.

HUNTINGTON—H. R. Whyte estimates that there are between four and five thousand cases of influenza in Huntington. It is said that 1,100 employees of the Liggett-Myers Tobacco Company failed to call for pay last Saturday. Every house in the city where the disease is raging is to be placarded, according to plans of the board of health.

KYSER—Burn sulphur in the house every morning before the doors are thrown open and it will assist in warding off the Spanish influenza declares an old lady who holds that the old means of fighting disease are the best.
